Internationally Accredited Low-Cost Degree Programmes Taught in English Language at German Universities

Bachelors, Masters and Doctoral Degrees Taught in English

Some of the most innovative degree programmes offered at German universities are so-called international degree programmes taught in English language. In total 84 Bachelors, 434 Masters and 157 Doctoral programmes are on offer at present (April 2008). As a rule, the above-mentioned programmes share the following characteristics:

Advantages for the Student

- internationally recognised and accredited degrees
- taught solely or primarily in English, minimum requirement IELTS 6.0 – 7.0
- internationalised curriculum with study periods abroad in some cases
- ties with international guest lecturers and universities
- professional coaching and counselling for international students
- German language is not a requirement but may be required at basic conversational level
- Many programmes are non-fee-paying. Others have exceptionally low tuition fees in international comparison

How can EURASIA help?

- EURASIA offers a university placement service for international students applying for these degree programmes
- EURASIA offers an “English for academics” leading to the necessary IELTS requirement of the university

How to Qualify and Apply

- Since the courses are often oversubscribed students should have first class Bachelors degree (70% upwards)
- Courses taught solely or primarily in English usually require IELTS 6.0 – 7.0
- Apply with all school and university transcripts including legalised copies and legalised translations
- Provide a legalised IELTS certificate - not older than 3 months - from your home country showing your level

Choose any of the following programmes!

1. Premium IELTS Programme including university placement service and free German course

2. Standard IELTS Programme (English tuition only)

3. IELTS Programme for University Lecturers on university-sponsored scholarship

4. IELTS Programme for international scholars on government-sponsored scholarship
