

FOCUS GERMANY

Innovative Management in the German Retail Industry

This module begins with informative and theoretical seminars (30%) in preparation for the ensuing practical activities programme (70%) which will cover practical information relating to the innovative management in the German retailing industry. The courses may focus on different areas of the industry such as food & beverage retail, consumer electronics, furniture, discount retailing, department stores & shop-in-shop systems and DIY and bulk consumer goods and lasts for 1-2 weeks. Participants meet up with industry specialists and representatives from local companies in the retail industry. The practical experience programme may also includes visits to state regulatory bodies. All groups should specify in detail their actual objectives, so that interest-groups may be combined and the best experts and most relevant organisations and ministries can be contacted in order to organise the most productive visits possible:

1. Information for students and professors – knowledge-acquisition and practical experience in the retail field
2. Information for retail businessmen / wholesalers – know-how and contact acquisition
3. Information for retail companies and or exporters – international know-how acquisition
4. Information for potential buyers and investors – sourcing M&A candidates in retail industry sector
5. Information for general business interests – any combination of the above and general business-contacts
